In July, the RSU Alumni Association switched to a charitable gift structure after nine years of a dues-based model. This change allows the association to include all living RSU graduates as members. Beginning Aug. 1, all graduates of RSU are now recognized as members of the RSU Alumni Association.

"This is an exciting move for the alumni program at Rogers State University," said Marisa Littlefield, RSU alumni director. "Activating all graduates in the database gives us the ability to reach out and reconnect with a greater number of alumni who have attended our campuses since 1971." Association sponsored trips and alumni breakfasts.

Social functions are only the beginning of the RSU Alumni Association's benefits. Other benefits include networking, career growth, educational events, and exclusive discounts and services.

RSU MOBILE APP COMING SOON TO YOUR PHONE

The Pew Research Center reports that 35 percent of adults in the United States own a smartphone, and that number is expected to increase sharply over the next five years. That includes the majority of students at Rogers State University, as well as a growing number of prospective students, alumni, faculty and staff.

To better serve those audiences, RSU will soon launch a mobile app that will be available for all mobile devices running on Apple or Android platforms.

"During the last few years, mobile traffic to www.rsu.edu has increased exponentially," said Jimmy Hart, interim director of public relations. "Now, mobile interaction is even easier for that audience. The RSU Mobile App is free and puts a wide variety of content within one touch of your smartphone."

The RSU Mobile App is currently undergoing testing and will soon be available for free download in the Apple and Android marketplaces. It will feature helpful information for students, alumni and prospective students, a plethora of interactive features, and modules that will leverage smartphone capabilities like GPS and streaming audio and video.

Many alumni will be drawn to features such as campus news and events feeds, athletics news, and RSU videos. The app also includes a GPS enabled campus map and interactive polls.

Alumni also will be able to download specially designed wallpapers and screensavers for their mobile devices.

Of course, many of the modules are tailored specifically for current and prospective students, such as Claremore's current weather, checklists, references and links.

To be among the first to download the RSU Mobile App, visit www.rsu.edu/rsumobileapp or scan the QR Code.

NEW STUDENTS APARTMENTS DEDICATED AT RSU

The RSU University Village B apartments are 87,118-square-feet and can house 255 students. This complex features wireless Internet, a clubhouse, and meeting rooms.

A dedication ceremony was held for the University Village B apartments at Rogers State University on Monday, Sept. 19.

Speaking at the dedication ceremony were Dr. John M. Bell, chairman of the University of Oklahoma Board of Regents, Julie K. Carson, chair of the Oklahoma State Regents for Higher Education, Dr. Larry Rice, RSU president, Kyla Short, director of RSU residential life, Rickey Paul Ward, RSU Student Government Association president, and Kylie Dent, University Village B resident. Also participating in the ribbon cutting were OU Regent Tom Clark, Chris A. Purcell, vice president for university governance and executive secretary of the OU Board of Regents and OU Regent Jon R. Stuart.

"Creating on-campus housing for these students will pay remarkable dividends through enhanced student life, stronger bonds between students that will last throughout their days as alumni, and a stronger campus identity," said RSU president Dr. Larry Rice. The new 87,118-square-foot complex is located just west of Soldier Field, with its main entrance on Colonel Horne Drive. The $11.5 million project accommodates 255 students in a three-level facility and features a clubhouse.

The main building features one, two and fourbedroom apartments, all with interior entrances linked by corridors. Each floor features commons areas, a recreation area and meeting rooms for residents. The building contains 99 two-bedroom units of 473 square feet, featuring a living area, kitchenette and bathroom; 12 fourbedroom units of 1,148 square feet, with a living room, kitchen and two bathrooms; and nine one-bedroom units of 361 square feet, with a living room, kitchenette and bathroom.

A laundry facility is located on the first floor.

The single-story, 6,758-square-foot clubhouse features a large conference room, which can be divided into three smaller conference rooms, and a theater room with a large-screen television. The clubhouse also contains a coffee bar, commons areas and staff offices.

The exterior of the buildings are covered with red brick, similar to the existing student apartments and other buildings on the main campus. During the last several semesters, a waiting list has existed for the University Village A apartments, which opened in 2001. That complex accommodates 248 students in four adjoining buildings and features recreation and meeting rooms, a swimming pool and sand volleyball court.

RSU ANNOUNCES RECORD ENROLLMENT

Rogers State University continues to grow, experiencing another semester of record enrollment with 4,632 students.

The fall enrollment figure represents an overall 5.6 percent increase in headcount and a 5.8 percent increase in student credit hours at the university, compared to last fall.

"The academic and programmatic quality found at RSU continues to attract record numbers of students," said RSU President Dr. Larry Rice. "This serves as a testament to the commitment made by our faculty and staff to provide students with an exceptional academic experience."

This fall, 3,019 students are attending classes at the main campus in Claremore, an increase of 9.5 percent. Enrollment at Claremore was boosted by the opening of new student apartments that almost doubled the university's on-campus housing capacity.

Enrollment increased by 8.8 percent at the RSU campus in Pryor. Currently, 272 students take classes solely at the Pryor campus. In coming years, RSU plans to expand its capacity to serve students in the Pryor area as it opens a new campus in partnership with MidAmerica Industrial Park.

Enrollment decreased by 7.1 percent at RSU in Bartlesville, with 404 students enrolled at that campus. However, when taking into account students in the Bartlesville area who take classes online or at more than one RSU campus, enrollment in Bartlesville exceeds 1,000 students.

Enrollment decreased by 0.5 percent in the RSU Online program, with 936 students. RSU currently offers nine programs – five bachelor's degrees and four associate degrees – that can be completed entirely online.

TWO RSU STUDENTS TABBED AS BRAD HENRY INTERNATIONAL SCHOLARS

Holly Jo Bates and Cristen Burdell

Two students from Rogers State University have been selected to study abroad at Swansea University in Wales as participants in the Brad Henry International Scholars program.

Cristen Burdell, a senior at RSU, will spend the fall semester in Wales. The Owasso, Okla., native is studying communication arts with a minor in English at RSU.

Burdell is a member of RSU's Honors Program, has participated in student theatre, volunteered with the Bit by Bit Therapeutic Riding Program and served as president of the Alpha Sigma Alpha sorority. She said she will take three courses at Swansea, including one that focuses on the works of Shakespeare, and is looking forward to travel opportunities while in Europe.

"I have always been interested in the United Kingdom. I love a lot of music that comes from there and my father was actually born there," Burdell said.

Bates is a member of the President's Leadership Class and Honors Program. She said her excitement for the study abroad opportunity is fueled by previous travel experiences.

"I went on the London and Paris intersession trip last summer and that was great," she said. "I also visited my brother in New Zealand last Christmas and did a two-week backpacking trip. Traveling really adds a lot to the college experience."

The Brad Henry International Scholars were chosen by their institutions for the international study program that was established by the Oklahoma State Regents for Higher Education in June 2008. The State Regents provide a $10,000 stipend for students selected to participate in semester-long study or research programs affiliated with Swansea University. Academic credit for these programs will be awarded by Oklahoma regional universities.

To read updates on the students' experiences while abroad, follow their blogs at www.rsu.edu/blogs.

RSU STUDENT TO INTERN IN D.C. THROUGH WASHINGTON CENTER PROGRAM

an internship through the Washington Center, a nationally-recognized internship program that places students with private, public and nonprofit organizations in Washington, D.C.

Trevor Shanklin, a senior at Rogers State University, was recently selected for

Shanklin is a political science major with a minor in public administration, originally from Nowata, Okla. While in D.C., he will intern with the National Republican Congressional Committee.

"This is the internship, out of all of the options, that I was hoping to get," Shanklin said. "This is an incredible opportunity, when you think about all the possibilities that exist in that environment, and I intend to make the most of it." Shanklin also will participate in a "Road to the White House" course offered by the Washington Center. The class was open to 25 students and focuses on issues and people involved with the current presidential campaigns. The first hour of each class will be broadcast on C-Span.

The Washington Center is an independent, nonprofit organization that provides internship programs and academic seminars to college students. The organization arranges 2,000 to 3,000 internship placements annually.

Shanklin is a veteran having served as a combat medic in Iraq and also as a National Guard recruiter. He is a member of the Student Veterans Association, participated in the Oklahoma Intercollegiate Legislature and served on the Student Government Association.

He will earn college credit for successfully completing the program.

Washington Center internships are comprised of internship placement, an academic course, and the Leadership Forum. All students are enrolled in a particular program according to their area of interest. Each program focuses learning on concepts closely related to students' intended professional fields. Activities and special programming, such as panels or tours of embassies or businesses, are tailored to the program's core learning objectives and areas of study.

"This Washington Center Program provides students with an invaluable opportunity to gain practical experience and begin developing a broad professional network," said Dr. Carolyn Taylor, RSU assistant professor and Strategic Initiatives Coordinator. "Trevor found a remarkable fit with his internship and course. We are very proud of him and know this will be a tremendous experience."

A blog detailing Shanklin's experiences in our nation's capital can be found at www.rsu.edu/blogs. For more information on the program, visit www.rsu.edu/washingtoncenter/ or contact Taylor at ctaylor@rsu.edu.

Dr. Abe Marrero Department Head and Professor Department of Psychology, Sociology and Criminal Justice

Abe Marrero has spent his life serving our community and our country. For 37 years he has served in the army; 22 in active duty and 15 in the reserves. He has taught at RSU since 1999.

In September of 2006, he was recalled into active duty. He was stationed in Fort Leavenworth, Kansas at the Command and General Staff College for three years. After his time there, he was sent to Honduras and served there until July of 2011.

While in Honduras, Marrero served as a Plans Officer in Joint Task Force-Bravo. This task force serves to aid in humanitarian efforts, counter narcoterrorism, and promote cooperation with partner nations throughout South and Central America.

Marrero did a lot of planning that involved humanitarian relief missions. His unit aided those devastated by landslides in El Salvador and various earthquakes throughout South America. The most well-known disaster his unit responded to was the Haiti earthquake, sending helicopters and providing medical aid.

"The planning that goes into helping a country is very intense," said Marrero. "We have to have a request from the host nation and our State Department has to approve it, as well as the Department of Defense. Then when it gets to our department, we respond.

"It is a very deliberate and formal process. My job was to make sure we were within the law when we responded and that we responded with the appropriate personnel and equipment. It is dynamic down there and we had to be ready to respond quickly."

While Marrero was stationed in Honduras, he said he gained an appreciation for the culture in South America.

"The people there are wonderful and hard workers," he explained. "It's a beautiful country, but it is like they are stuck in the fifties. It is kind of sad when you see their potential and they haven't reached it yet. I have gained an understanding of how difficult it is to move a country forward, and that is something I will remember when teaching my classes.

"We are blessed to have such a strong educational enterprise in the United States where students can come to school and learn things they can then apply."

Marrero returned to RSU at the start of the 2011-2012 school year and has since settled back into his position as department head and professor.

"It was easy to transition from uniform to coat and tie. A lot of people think there is a big difference between being a department head and what I did in the Army, but there really isn't for me. I persuade people to do things in both positions. I set an example and I don't ask them to do things I wouldn't do myself."

He expressed that the most difficult part was being away from his family for so long. Settling back into family life was a transition and he said reintegration of the family unit is hard.

"I'm happy to be back. I was proud to be able to serve. It was a privilege and an honor, especially when I got to serve with men and women who gave the ultimate sacrifice. There's a lot that isn't perfect about our country, but my goodness, it's about as good as it's going to get. You can see that when you go to other countries. We have a lot to be thankful for and we shouldn't take anything for granted," Marrero said.

"I'm grateful to be back at RSU and I'm excited to pick up where I left off!"

RSU PUBLIC TV RECEIVES EMMY AWARDS

RSU Public Television received two Emmy Awards for its documentary "Will Rogers and American Politics" and its how-to program "Woodturning Workshop with Tim Yoder."

"Will Rogers and American Politics" was awarded a Heartland Emmy in the category of historical documentary. It is an in-depth look at how a ropetwirling, plain-talking Cherokee cowboy became one of the most powerful political voices in America.

The production highlights Rogers' influence and political power as revealed through the eyes and words of great Americans such as Supreme Court Justice Sandra Day O'Connor, comedian Lewis Black and many others.

"Woodturning Workshop with Tim Yoder" received an Emmy in the informational-instruction program category. The program about the craft of woodturning is on its fourth season. Hosted, produced and edited by Yoder, the program has been seen in over 90 percent of the nation on public television.

RSU Public Television is licensed to Rogers State University and is the only public TV station operated by a university in Oklahoma. The station, based on the RSU campus in Claremore, reaches more than one million people within a 75-mile radius of the campus.

RSU UNVEILS STUDENT VET MENTOR PROGRAM

On August 15, Rogers State University unveiled a new student veterans support program.

The Vet 2 Vet (V2V) mentoring program will pair new RSU student veterans with experienced RSU student veterans serving as mentors. The mentors will provide peer-to-peer guidance regarding the experience of transitioning from military life to being a college student.

Mentors are required to be a veteran/military student, have completed at least one year or two semesters of course work at RSU, be currently working towards a degree, be in good standing with the university and have a retention GPA of 2.5 or better.

"It always helps when you know someone who has already been through a similar situation and knows the correct answers. Student veterans face many questions: who, where and how questions are common and they are the most daunting," said Michael Gordon, a volunteer V2V mentor.

The V2V program is modeled after the University of Michigan's Student Success Initiative. The mentoring training materials, which utilize volunteer mentors so the program requires little funding, have been adopted with permission of University of Michigan's V2V program director.

"This program will help us ensure our student veterans have a successful school experience and persist towards graduation at RSU," said Nancy Page, senior admissions counselor & RSU VA certifying official.

Any RSU student veteran wishing to be placed with a mentor should contact Jessica Heavin at (918) 343-7845.

RSU INSTRUCTORS PUBLISH TEXTBOOK

With the release of their new textbook, two RSU faculty members take issue with the old adage that "those who can, do; and those who can't, teach."

Scott Robert Reed, developmental instructor at Rogers State University, and Dr. Brenda Tuberville, assistant professor and coordinator of developmental studies at RSU, would maintain that those who can, do both and write a textbook.

Reed and Tuberville are the authors of "Writing in a New Language: An Introduction to Academic Writing," just published by Fountainhead Press, and will be using this textbook in all sections of basic writing taught at RSU.

"I have seen my share of really bad basic writing textbooks over the past 16 years," Tuberville said, "and the thought of writing one that truly meets our students' needs had been in the back of my mind for some time."

The impetus for moving that idea from the back of her mind to the front was the addition of Scott Reed as a full-time developmental instructor.

"We wanted to write a text that addresses the challenges we see writing students facing every day with a more practical approach," Reed stated.

Proceeds from the sale of this textbook to RSU students will go into an RSU Foundation account that has been set up to improve the teaching of basic writing at the university.

AREA MUSICIANS INVITED FOR CONCERT BAND

Rogers State University is putting out a call to area musicians to join the new RSU Concert Band.

The concert band, which will include RSU students, faculty and staff, is open to all members of the community. Dr. Kirk Weller, RSU director of bands, hopes for enthusiastic support from high school musicians as well as from other members of the community.

"This is a fantastic opportunity for us to build an ensemble that includes everyone from high schoolers to mature musicians who have a great time playing a variety of band music," he said.

Concert band rehearsals are held each Thursday, from 6:00 p.m. to 8:30 p.m. at the Old Student Union on RSU's Claremore Campus.

RSU also invites community members to participate in the RSU Jazz Ensemble, which rehearses on Mondays, and the RSU University Choir, which rehearses on Tuesdays. Both are held from 6:00 p.m. to 8:45 p.m. in the Old Student Union.

For more information, contact Weller at (918) 343-7723.

BRADLEY NAMED AS RSU ATHLETIC DIRECTOR

 Ryan Bradley answers questions durning a press conference announcing his appointment as the RSU Athletic Director.

RSU President Larry Rice did not have to go far to find the Hillcats new Athletic Director. He hired a familiar face to guide the Hillcats, one that has been with the Hillcats since the inception of athletics in 2006.

Ryan Bradley was appointed as the new director of athletics in June. He became the second athletic director at RSU, taking the reins from Wren Baker. Bradley started out as the school's first sports information director in 2006 and was promoted to associate athletic director for external relations in August of 2010.

"When I came to Rogers State, I did not show up with the intentions of climbing the ladder and becoming the athletic director," Bradley said. "I was excited that Wren gave me the opportunity to be the school's first sports information director and really didn't give it much more thought than that but to his credit he gave me the opportunity to be involved in several different things. I was able to try new things and start new initiatives. I think the success we have had and the role that I got to play in the beginning had a lot to do with me ultimately getting this opportunity."

Bradley developed the athletic website (www.rsuhillcats.com) and produced several award-winning publications. He launched a number of new media initiatives for the RSU athletics department. The Hillcats now offer live audio and video streaming for all home athletic events, a free RSU Athletics app for mobile devices, and boast popular Facebook, YouTube and Twitter pages.

"What we've tried to do here from the beginning is create a buzz in the community and regionally about what is happening within the Hillcats athletic programs," Bradley said. "So a lot of the initiatives that I helped create were about getting the word out about RSU Athletics. A lot of great people have been a part of the success of our program. We have been fortunate to have a great staff that has put a lot of time and effort into the program. It's a comprehensive effort that makes us all look good. Everyone has pulled together to make Hillcats Athletics successful. Individually, we could do a lot of great things but if we don't win games, graduate athletes and have the support of our administration, we couldn't thrive."

Bradley has been instrumental in the development and organization of RSU's fundraising and marketing initiatives. As the associate athletic director, his duties included fundraising, marketing, promotions, game management, oversight of the media relations department and athletic administrator for several sports. He has also performed various broadcasting roles for the university, including serving as the voice of Hillcats baseball and softball on RSU Radio 91.3 FM.

He has also been involved in the planning of several construction projects, including four million dollars' worth of impending enhancements to the baseball, softball, soccer and cross country facilities.

"Our facility upgrades are only going to enhance what is already true out our athletic programs and our university," Bradley said. "We are doing things at a level of excellence that is unrivaled by our peers in the area. From our student union to our on campus apartments and athletic facilities we want it to be something our community will be proud of and will high-caliber attract а student-athlete to RSU. When students, athletes and coaches from other universities come to RSU we want them to leave with a very positive provide and the class in which we represent ourselves and our university to every person we come in contact with. Facilities leave a huge first impression and I think these enhancements will be a huge shot in the arm in terms of our overall perception for those who are coming to campus and getting a look at Rogers State for the first time."

For Bradley, RSU is home. The Claremore product wants the RSU Athletic department to bring about pride and comradely to not only the campus but also to the community where he grew up.

"Being here from the beginning makes this job even more rewarding," Bradley said. "This is my hometown, I grew up here and I take a sense of pride in what RSU and Hillcats Athletics is doing for the community. I have been invested in the growth of this program since its infancy and it's something that those of us who have been here since the beginning can look back and really be proud of what's been accomplished. We can feel like we have had a hand in creating this from scratch and this is only the beginning of so many more great things to come."

MEN'S SOCCER

Coach Derek Larkin

The 2011 season brings a mixture of veteran returners and talented newcomers together with one common goal: winning a championship. The Hillcats graduated 10 seniors in 2010, however Head Coach Derek Larkin is looking to his returners to step up and fill the void.

The Hillcats return 50 percent of their offensive production from last year's squad, including senior T.J. Martin who will lead the offense. Henrique Sousa returns for his senior campaign with a new role. As one of the most versatile players on the squad, he will transition from defense into a more offensive role.

Junior Justin Friesen started in all 18 games as a sophomore, scoring one goal and adding one assist. RSU returns several talented players on defense, including all four starters. Ryan Coffman and Bryan Jones will command the defense.

The Hillcats were tabbed to finish fourth in the 2011 SAC Preseason Coaches' Poll.

WOMEN'S SOCCER

The Rogers State women's soccer team enjoyed its fourthstraight winning season in 2010. The Hillcats look to continue their success in 2011 as they return a large group of veterans while adding an impressive nucleus of newcomers.

Twelve players, including seven starters, return from the 2010 squad. RSU returns a trio of goal-scorers to the lineup. Leading the way is Shereen Clarke, who paced the Cats with nine goals last season. Senior Chelsea Myers and junior Lauren Hager each netted three goals and dished out one assist during the 2010 campaign. Sophomore goalkeeper Chelsea McMullin returns after an exceptional rookie year during which she broke the university's single-season freshman saves record with 120 saves. The Hillcats return every starter on the back line, including Abby Rickner, Jessica Turner, Cierra Lohaus and Devon Bullard.

"New Mexico State transfer Veronica Subu and freshman Jordan Beasley are both very talented and will bring speed to the lineup," Larkin said.

MEN'S BASKETBALL

Coach Justin

Barkley

Head coach Justin Barkley and the Rogers State men's basketball coaching staff added 10 players to the roster for the upcoming 2011-12 season.

Five of the 10 players competed at the NCAA Division I level in their collegiate career, while two come from the NCAA Division II level, one is a junior college transfer and two are from the high school ranks.

"I give a lot of credit to our staff. They worked their tails off all summer long to give us an opportunity to compete for a slot in the national tournament," Barkley said about assistant coaches Kyle Blankenship and Chuck Love along with former assistant Mike Cyprien, all of whom played vital roles in securing this season's class of recruits.

RSU hasn't seen a recruiting class with such Division I experience since the inaugural class in 2007 featured six Division I transfers.

Six players return from the 2010-11 squad that reached the final eight of the NAIA National Championship. Among them are point guard Maurice Rutherford and forward Larry Cox, both of whom played vital roles last season.

WOMEN'S BASKETBALL

Head Coach Amy Williams and staff announced the addition of eight players to the 2011-12 women's basketball roster.

Returning just five players from a team that reached the NAIA National Tournament a season ago, the Hillcats will look upon a cast of new characters to take hold of the reins. Three freshman, four juniors and one senior make up the incoming class of recruits.

Ariani Silva comes to the Hill from Cowley College where she earned All-Jayhawk East Conference recognition along with first team All-Region and third team All-America recognition. Silva made an impressive 83 3-pointers last season for the Tigers.

Joining the Hillcats for her senior season, Gianna Woods comes from Henderson State University where she averaged 10.5 points and six rebounds last season. Woods began her collegiate career at NCAA Division I Robert Morris University.

The eight newcomers join five returners from last season in what will be a junior laden roster for the Hillcats in 2011-12. The strength for the Cats will be in the post with the return of Logan Froese, Brittani Smith and Madison Harris.

BASEBALL

In its sixth year of existence with a strong nucleus of returners and an impressive group of newcomers, the Rogers State baseball team is prepared to meet high expectations in 2011.

Grant Cosby

"For the most part, we are going to have our entire lineup coming back," RSU Head Coach

BUSY JUNE "MOST OUTSTANDING" FOR OMA ALUMNI

Often times on a college campus, the month of June is rather quiet with the close of the academic year and the beginning of the summer session. This was certainly not the case this June on the Rogers State University campus.

The Oklahoma Military Academy Reunion on June 3-4 may well have been the best OMA Reunion ever on College Hill.

Phil Goldfarb, OMA class of 1969, said, "This OMA Reunion, with the dedication of the Oklahoma Military Academy Killed in Action Memorial on Saturday, was the most outstanding singular event ever to happen on College Hill."

The black granite Memorial honoring 100 OMA Alumni killed in action during World War II, Korea, and Vietnam was constructed center front of the Claremore campus between the institution's two oldest and historic buildings, Preparatory Hall and Meyer Hall. These buildings are also two of the iconic reminders of the institution's 52-year legacy as a military academy.

Randy Vierling, OMA class of 1963 and past president of the OMA Alumni Association, challenged the alumni to provide funds for the KIA Memorial construction during the 2010 reunion. The overwhelming response raised more than $150,000, with $50,000 now designated for a permanent endowment. The endowment will help fund maintenance of the Memorial, the OMA Museum, and provide scholarships for RSU students majoring in Military History.

Four-Star General Dennis Reimer (retired), former Chief of Staff of the Army, presented the keynote speech at the OMA KIA Memorial's dedication. Reimer is the highest ranking native Oklahoman to have served in the military. Nearly 200 OMA Alumni, many family members of the OMA KIA Alumni and many others were in attendance.

"It is always a good day when we honor those who have made the ultimate sacrifice for all of us in America and not wind, rain or snow could have the changed the feeling that was felt by all on the RSU campus when the OMA KIA Memorial was unveiled," said Dr. Danette McNamara Boyle, executive director of the OMA Alumni Association. The month of June continued with Boyle announcing plans to retire from her long-held position as RSU Vice President for Development. During her 38 years on the Hill. Boyle led the Rogers State University Foundation and raised millions of dollars of private support for the University endowment and academic programs. She also played a lead role in reestablishing the OMA Alumni Association's connection with RSU.

Her retirement, effective June 30, was shortlived. Boyle returned to campus on Sept. 1 in a newly created position, executive director of the OMA Alumni Association.

RSU President Larry Rice welcomed her return.

"I look forward to working with Dr. Boyle in her new position with the university. She will continue the important work of preserving our past and building even better relationships with our OMA Alumni," he said, acknowledging OMA Alumni have generously contributed to RSU's ongoing success.

PRIVATE FUNDS MAKE RSU BARTLESVILLE BETTER THAN EVER

The Lyon Foundation of Bartlesville has stepped forward once again in support of Rogers State University. A grant award will be utilized to continue the replacement of windows throughout the historic campus building in downtown Bartlesville.

This gift continues a window replacement project which was initiated in 2010. The latest grant will complete the replacement of windows on the north and east side of the downtown RSU campus building.

Replacement of the single pane, aluminum windows on the west side was the first phase of the project, followed by replacement of windows on the south side and on the ninth floor of the building.

"This project will enhance the exterior of one of the city's most historic buildings while creating a more energy efficient and comfortable environment for faculty, staff and students," RSU President Dr. Larry Rice said. "We are very appreciative of the interest and support of The Lyon Foundation for Rogers State University Bartlesville."

Thermal, break frame, insulated, e-glass windows are being used in the renovation project. In addition to the exterior enhancements, considerable energy savings are anticipated. The final phase of the replacement project is scheduled to begin this fall.

RSU Bartlesville is located in the historic Reda Building, which has served as an elegant, ninestory centerpiece of downtown Bartlesville since 1919. The ornate facade of the building is constructed of cut stone and brick. The interior of the first-floor lobby is adorned with high-quality materials including marble and original light fixtures.

The building originally served as headquarters for the Cities Service Oil Co. and later was the home of the Reda Pump Co. RSU acquired the building in 2005 from the Schlumberger Co., a worldwide oilfield services company that has major operations in Bartlesville.

The downtown RSU Bartlesville campus opened in the fall of 2005. Classrooms, offices, computer lab, and science labs are located on the sixth and seventh floor. The Enrollment Center and bookstore are located on the first floor, and a business incubator center is located on the eighth floor.
